Rural practice is often iso-lating for its practitioners. The broad range of clinical conditions faced with limited local resources challenge even seasoned providers. Some providers are so over-whelmed by the continuous demand for services, particularly during suicide out-breaks, that even well-seasoned and balanced providers risk burn-out. For example, there are situations where the appropriate treatment is known, such as counseling therapy for a youth survivor of sexual abuse, but there are simply no appropriately trained therapists in the community. One of our IHS Area Behavioral Health Consultants told me recently that there was only one psychiatrist in her half of a large Western state attempting to serve both the Indian and non-Indian popu-lation. Despite years of effort, the IHS Area Office had been unsuccessful in recruit-ing a fulltime psychiatrist to serve the tribes in that region. Over the years, we have...
